

The English Literary Tradition. A study of a culture, based upon the more important literary works (3 quarters)

American Life and Letters. A study of American literature as an expression of America's history and culture (3 quarters)

The Art of Poetry (1 quarter)

Twentieth Century American Prose and Poetry (2 quarters)

Advanced Courses:

Chaucer and Medieval England (2 quarters)

Shakespeare and the Elizabethans (3 quarters)

The English Novel (3 quarters)

Victorian England in Essay and Poetry (3 quarters)

The Romantic Movement in England (2 quarters)

The Contemporary English and American Novel (2 quarters)

Tutorials for students planning to graduate in literature.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND LITERATURE

Work is offered in French, German, Russian, and Spanish, and their respective literatures. Small classes make it possible to stress the practical side of speaking and understanding the modern languages. After one year of study the student should be able to understand the spoken language and make himself understood. Intensive courses of five hours a week are offered for beginners. By the end of the second year the student is expected to read in the language without the intermediary process of translation.

For more advanced students the courses become predominantly literary and cultural in content and are often conducted in the foreign language. A period, a literary genre or particular authors will be studied as the need arises.

Introductory French
Advanced French
Survey of French Literature

Introductory German
Advanced German
Eighteenth and Nineteenth Century German Literature